OF NEGRO SOLDIERS.

Citizens of Brownsville Did Not Want Them to Remain.

Theory is Advanced That There Was a Deep Conspiracy Afoot.

By Associated Press.
Elmore, Okl., Nov. 27.—Gilchrist, Stewart, colored, who has been at Fort Reno the past few days securing data to be placed as evidence before president Roosevelt in the matter of the discharge of the negro soldiers of the 25th infantry, said last night:

"The substance of my investigation supported by over 100 affidavits from the members and non-commissioned officers of the companies amounts to this:

"First, that the citizens did not want negro soldiers in Brownsville, Texas.

"Second, that this feeling became so intense that on the very night in question, Major Penrose issued an order and sent out patrols through the town that all men should be in by 8 o'clock whether on pass or not, and Captain McKin, officer of the day, reported that all men were in except three on pass.

"Third, that the firing that night was of mixed arms."

"All the inspectors sent out from the war department have started out with the assumption that there was a conspiracy among the men to keep back the truth and shoot up the town. They have never made any investigation into the real facts. From the investigation there was undoubtedly a conspiracy to make a case against the soldiers and get them out of the town. Six sergeants of long service, and in whom the commissioned officers have much confidence, are going to Washington with me to act as witnesses before President Roosevelt."

As Seen Through the Gaze of President Theodore Roosevelt.

GOES TO CONGRESS

In a Special Message About One Week From Monday.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 27.—President Roosevelt, bronzed and invigorated from his long trip to Panama and Porto Rico, was in his office early today. Secretary Loeb took to him a large amount of correspondence which had accumulated since the president's departure and was with him up till the time of the cabinet meeting at 11 o'clock.

The president's special message on the Panama canal is now expected, will be sent to congress about a week after it convenes on Monday. It will deal with every phase of the question and give a graphic and detailed description of conditions on the isthmus as the president found them. There will be recommendations for the betterment of conditions which suggested themselves during his visit.

Family is Prominent But Cause For Crime Has Not Been Found.

By Associated Press.
Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 27.—After over a month's investigation by physicians and chemists it has been determined that the peculiar sickness in the family of William F. Wait is due to arsenical poisoning. Mr. Wait is still very ill at the city hospital and his son, Bryan, who recently graduated at Yale, is also partially paralyzed. He has lost the use of his hands and legs and physicians say he may not recover in years.

The Rev. Harvey Clements, of Gloversville, a son-in-law, who recently spent a few days in the Wait household, was stricken the same way and was ill for some time. Mrs. Wait also was desperately ill for several days. The servants in the household and the coachman were among the victims of the disease. All symptoms pointed conclusively to arsenical poisoning, and as a last resort detectives and the local police were called in to the case but the greatest secrecy was preserved. Analysis of the sugar, flour, tea and other food stuffs remaining in the Wait house showed the presence of arsenic in sufficient quantities to produce death; indeed it is supposed the victims were given over doses, for horrible nausea followed the meals and this may have averted speedy death. Investigation is still progressing, but there is absolutely not the slightest proof to indicate the author of the crime. Mr. Wait is a member of the carpet manufacturing firm of Nye and Wait and the family is among the most respected in this city.

Walter Wellmen Prefers Air Ships

When It Comes to Exploring in the Chilly Polar Lands.

IS PROVEN PRACTICAL

Through Experiences in Spitzbergen Last Summer.

Aerial Monster Now in the Course of Construction in Paris.

By Associated Press.
Chicago, Nov. 27.—Belief in the practicability of reaching the north pole by an air ship has been greatly strengthened in the mind of Walter Wellman, leader of the Wellman Polar expedition, as a result of his observations last summer at the expedition's base of supplies in Spitzbergen.

Mr. Wellman, who has recently arrived from Paris will return in two weeks to superintend the reconstruction of his balloon.

Mr. Wellman declared last night that his experience in Spitzbergen last summer proved that his scheme for getting to the pole by the aerial route was even more feasible than he had at first supposed. Both he and Major H. B. Hersey, head of the United States weather bureau at Milwaukee, who also spent the summer in Spitzbergen, are strengthened in their opinion that the air ship plan offers a very strong chance of success. Their observations showed that there were days upon days, during last July and August when the pole could have been reached in about thirty hours from their supply base by the air ship, while the general weather conditions during almost their entire northern stay were favorable in the extreme for the flight.

The air ship is now being enlarged and much improved in Paris and will afford even a better chance of getting to the pole than it did in its original form.

FANS OF WRESTLING Are Expected to be Here This Evening From the Forest City

"Young Gotch" Thinks Well of His Chances Against Akerman.

Henry Gehring, "Young Gotch" the Cleveland wrestler who is to wrestle Al Akerman at the Auditorium this evening, will arrive here from Cleveland late this afternoon and the contest will go on at the Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock this evening. The Cleveland wrestler and his manager will be accompanied by Will McKay, sporting editor of the Cleveland Leader, who is stake holder for the match and it is expected that a number of Cleveland followers of the wrestling game will be here to back the young brewer with Cleveland money. Gehring is no second rater in the wrestling game and is entitled to all of the support he is receiving from the people of the forest city. He has beaten many good men in the last year and is expected to prove a difficult proposition for Akerman to solve. It is heavier than the local man and thinks well enough of his chances for victory to wager some of his own money on the result.

BEGRUDGE EXPENSE In Putting Buildings in a Lawful Sanitary Condition

BUT FEAR OF THE LAW Has Compelled Packers to Protect the Dear Public.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 27.—Alonso D. Melvin, chief of the bureau of animal industry under whose office the administration of the meat inspection law enacted at the last session of congress, is carried out, has returned from a western tour of inspection which included a visit to packing houses in Chicago, Milwaukee, Denver and Kansas City. He says everywhere there is apparent the beneficial effects of the execution of the law and a manifest desire on the part of the packers to comply with its provisions. In some places new structures have replaced old ones and in others extensive improvements to the plants already established have been made so as to bring them up to the standard required by the meat inspection act for the health and comfort of the packing house employees. Dr. Melvin says there were some cases in which packers have proceeded rather grudgingly in making the necessary improvements due to the outlay of money required.

The incident gave rise to reports of an attempt to hold up the train.

AT FT. LEAVENWORTH.

Deserted From the United States Army and Turned Thief.

During Prison Confinement He Was Often Quite Unruly.

By Associated Press.
Kansas City, Nov. 27.—The description of the man who, at Marshall, Mo., yesterday confessed to having robbed the Alton-Burlington train near Glasgow, Mo., on Sunday night, and who gave his name as Claud Randall, tallies with that of Claude Rumsey, who was released from the United States military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., on November 3, after serving a sentence for desertion from the army. It is believed here that "Randall" and "Rumsey" are the same man. The prison record at Fort Leavenworth shows that Rumsey, or "Randall" enlisted in the U. S. army at San Francisco on November 24th, 1904, when he gave his age as 22, his occupation as that of a cook, and his home as Grant county, Mo. When he deserted from the army he was arrested at Sedalia, Mo., for robbing a box car. These particulars confirm the man's confession, made yesterday at Marshall, Mo.

Major Young said today that during Rumsey's incarceration at Fort Leavenworth it was necessary frequently to administer punishment for misconduct. He was a desperate man. Rumsey was released from Fort Leavenworth four days previous to the first train robbery at Glasgow, that of the Rock Island train.

BIG STICK SENT TO STRENUOUS TEDDY.

By Associated Press.
Pittsburg, Nov. 27.—A "big stick" provided by nature is on the way to the president, according to the Post this morning.

In a special dispatch from Marion, O., it is announced that Congressman Grant E. Mouser, of that city, last night received a large gourd from one of his constituents, with a note requesting that it be delivered to President Roosevelt. The gourd is about four feet long and is said to resemble the published picture of the "big stick." Attached to the gourd was the following message:

"Mr. Roosevelt: "Please accept this 'Big Stick' and send it to congress attached to your next message, and tell them to be good. It was apparently designed by providence for your official use. "From your trust-busting democratic admirers of Marion, Ohio."

EVIL EYE CHARMS.

The True Italian Talisman is in the Shape of a Tiny Hand.In Italy the aristocracy still protects itself from the evil eye, and the multitude is still devoted to the little evil eye charms to secure immunity from disaster.The true evil eye charm of the Italians is in the shape of a tiny hand, the index and the little finger being pointed out and the third and fourth fingers being held down by the thumb. The charm, however, is merely a representation of the way in which the Italian holds his hand. When pointed outward he wishes to cast the evil eye on an enemy, or when turned toward himself he thinks to protect himself from its malicious spell.This little charm can be bought in Italy of various materials, coral, tortoise shell, silver and gold being the ones in highest favor. The coral charms are those worn by the poorer classes, since of a cheap grade of the material they can be bought for a few souls. Naturally the aristocracy prefer them of gold. In Italian money these tiny things then cost the equivalent of about 8¢. Sometimes they are seen exquisitely modeled, the fingers and nails being as carefully chiseled as marble statues.Another small hand that the Italian wears as a charm is known as the Manus Pantheon, a facsimile of which is to be found in the museum in Rome.
It is referred to in various Egyptian papyri, and indeed was worn by the ancients to prevent disease and witchcraft and the evil eye from taking hold of them and to induce love and amiability.This hand has the thumb, the index and the middle fingers held out in a straight line, while the other two are turned under toward the palm of the hand. Instead of being smooth on its outer surface, as is the evil eye hand, it is covered with many mystical symbols—a tooth, a serpent, and so on.
Each of these little signs has its peculiar charm and is as well understood and heeded among the Italians today as formerly among the Egyptian magicians.The third small hand which the Italians wear for their supposed good is the so called Manus Pontificus, or the hand of the Holy Father. It shows the four fingers held out closely together, and the thumb alone is curved under the palm of the hand. As the Manus Pantheon, it is covered on the outside with mystical symbols. — Washington

Thunder and Lightning.

Here is a Georgia-youngster's definition of thunder and lightning:
"The thunder is maw readin' a lecture to paw, an' the lightning is paw-runnin' to git away from it. But I doubt if lightning kin beat him when he jumps the garden fence an' hits the grit!"—Atlanta Constitution.

dog's life," panted the cur with the tin can attachment, crawling into a corner to rest himself."Oh, I don't know," contentedly answered the lap dog.—Chicago Tribune.

With the absence of Robertson, the

the only chance Lima had to score for the season, and determine the question of players for the various

Rev. Clarence Mitchell Has

The Daily Republican, of Meadville,

"Evangelist Clarence Mitchell, of Lima, O., leaves this morning for home. Yesterday the official board of the Christian church passed a resolution commending Mr. Mitchell's work while in the city. Although the meeting had to close just at its beginning, because Mr. Mitchell was taken ill with pneumonia, yet 12 addresses were made and the entire indebtedness of the church, $1,700, was planned to be liquidated. Before Mr. Mitchell was taken ill, the meeting was the most promising of any the church had ever planned. At yesterday's services there were five baptisms. Mr. Mitchell, by his scholarly and courteous manner of preaching, made many friends in and out of the church. His next meeting is at Barnesville, O., and begins next Sunday."

Baltimore & Ohio System Announces Advance in Wages.

Local railway employees believe things are gradually coming towards them, and only a few days ago an advance was announced for New York Central lines. The following dispatch shows the idea is spreading, though as yet it has not come limaward:
Cincinnati, Nov. 27.—The first announcement of an increase of wages granted to local railroad employees was made today when the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern railroad granted the switchmen an increase of four cents per hour.

The other roads have not as yet announced any increase and conference looking to a settlement were held today. Other branches of railroad employees are also here in conference with the different railroad officials endeavoring to reach an agreement on the question of an increase in wages.

"When I was a druggist, at Li-of Grassville, Mo., "three of my customers were permanently cured of consumption by Dr. King's New Discovery, and are well and strong today. One was trying to sell his property and move to Arizona, but after using New Discovery a short time he found it unnecessary to do so. I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the sold right in Lima for $190.00.

Indianapolis Capitalists are

Wells Look Good But Expert Advises Against

Oblong, Ill., Nov. 27.—Doubts concerning the feasibility of the new Illinois field as an Indianapolis storehouse were uppermost in the minds of the Indianapolis gas investigators when they began their second day's inspection of the Crawford county gas field, with a view of piping gas from here to Indianapolis. The investigation has established two facts, the more important of which is that good dry, natural gas, which is odorless and of which heating power exists in Crawford county in large quantities. But to offset this is the fact that it would be difficult if not impossible to construct for a sufficient amount of the gas to justify laying a pipe line to Indianapolis.

The gas industry here is secondary and incidental to the oil industry. The discovery of gas was accidental, and, like all accidents, is deplored to a certain extent by the oil men. Gas men might see fit to preserve the gas and prospect for more with a view to supply some distant market, but the oil men who through this field look upon gas as only an obstacle to their plans and to get rid of it quickly and effectively is their first thought, with the exception of having only sufficient to run their pumping and drilling machinery.

One of the largest wells visited by the Indianapolis delegation was at Porterville. This well showed 4,300,000 feet in 14 days straight when first drilled in. When blown off for investigation, it showed 7,800,000 feet. The flow of the gas blew the nearby tree branches like a windstorm. The horses hitched to one of the committee carriages, not having their ears packed with cotton, as did the committee men, look bright at the deafening roar and ran away, demolishing the vehicle.

Another well near the Porterville well was tested and showed a rock pressure of 407 pounds and a volume of 5,200,000 cubic feet. Two other wells were tested, but they did not make the showing of the described. The first showed a volume of 1,700,000 feet, but the second showed oil and water. The largest gas well is on the Walters farm northeast of Oblong, and showed a volume of nearly 900,000,000 feet, and is known as the "Jumbo" well.

Unfortunately, the high rock pressure of the wells does not always mean that the volume is correspondingly large. The Price farm well, for instance, showed when drilled in a pressure of 360 pounds and a volume of 3,200,000. Yet this well began to show oil before many weeks, and within a few months contained no gas at all. Another well was drilled and seemed to be in lasting quantities.

The experience of the Price farm well, it might be stated, tends to make the Indianapolis men cautious about becoming too enthusiastic over the other wells.

State Geologist Blatchley remarks: "The field here is limited and shallow, and I doubt if the proposition is worth the amount of money it would involve."

Late Oblong Gushers.
Oblong township, Crawford county, is furnishing its quota of gushers, and the walking beam on drilling wells are kept busy, regardless of the reported inactivity in the field. By the looks of operations it appears as though the trade was increasing their operations, instead of decreasing as they expected to some weeks ago.

The Red Bank Oil company has a gusher in well No. 2 on the J. B. Hook farm, in the northeast quarter of section 31, Oblong township, as its first 24 hours production amounted to 550 barrels. Same company has what shows for a light well in No. 4 on the Lemar farm, section 11, and a century producer in No. 4 J. Riker farm, section 15. Same company has a duster in No. 3 on the W. E. Whitmer farm, section 33, and near Stoy.

The Mahutsha Oil company's No. 6 on the W. E. Mitchell farm, in the northeast quarter of section 16, produced 200 barrels. No. 7 same farm, is showing for equally as much, as is No. 7 on the W. D. Walker farm.

The Tecumseh Oil & Gas company's No. 2 on the J. W. Dennis farm, section 2, looks good for about 10 barrels. Fertig, Hegerson and others have a 75 barrel pumper in No. 4 Wm. Wood farm, in the northeast quarter of section 31.

Jennings Bros. & Co's No. 5 J. McCullis farm, section 5, produced 200 barrels. Same firm's No's 1 and 2 S. E. Frazier farm, in the northeast quarter of section 4, are listed as 40 barrel pumps.

Mallory & Crawford's No. 2 H. Dec farm, section 32, produced 30 barrels, while No. 3 is credited with doing 150 barrels.

Brown, Hogue & Findley's No. 4 W. R. Buck farm, section 4, produced 75 barrels.

The Allegheny Oil company's No. 1 Robt. Warnock farm, section 2, produced 10 barrels.

E. M. Treat & Co's No. 13 Jacob Good farm, section 16, produced 75 barrels.

Milliken, Whitehill and others have a duster in No. 2 V. J. Furman farm, section 2.

The Mahutsha Oil company has a century producer in a test on the O. R. Smith farm, in section 29.

Whitehill, Smith & Co's No. 6 M. A. Jobe farm, section 33, is a 30 barrel pumper.

W. L. Curtis has a 250 barrel producer in No. 2 on the E. F. Frazier farm, in the southeast quarter of section 30.

Gormley, Johnson & Co's No. 1 W. D. Beat farm, in the southwest quarter of section 23, produced 75 barrels.

L. E. Ackery, trustee, has drilled in No. 1 on the D. P. Kirtland farm, in the northeast quarter of section 4, and it produced 90 barrels.

Concheon Bros. & Co's No. 3 Mary A. McLain farm, section 35, produced 250 barrels.

McDonald & Thompson's No. 2 A. E. Hoff farm, section 5, produced 200 barrels.

The Ohio Oil company's test on the L. Henry farm, section 27, is said to show considerable gas.

Was Wanted at South Milford, Ind., on Charge of Larceny.

Glen Watson, the young man who was arrested here a few days ago by Chief Mills, being wanted at South Milford, Indiana, on a charge of grand larceny, is again at large. He escaped from a special officer who was sent to this city to take him back to South Milford and nothing is known concerning his whereabouts.

Watson was captured here in a saloon, having been seen on the street and recognized by Chief Mills who had received a description of the man from the authorities of the Indiana town. John Barlow, the man who is alleged to have been robbed, was deputized as a special officer to take charge of the prisoner and he left here with his man on the Ft. Wayne. Van Wert and Lima traction line and was accompanied to the Indiana state line by a local officer. When the Lima officer got ready to part company with the Indiana special constable the latter produced a pair of handcuffs and placed them on the wrists of the prisoner. They continued to Ft. Wayne and from there started for South Milford on a Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad train. When the train was between two small stations named Slater and Armstrong, the prisoner asked permission to enter the closet of the smoker. The request was granted and when he did not return to his seat in the car within a reasonable length of time, the officer became uneasy and on making an investigation, found that Watson had escaped by jumping out of a car window while the train was in motion. He still wore the handcuffs when he escaped but has not been heard from since his escape.

Watson is alleged to have stolen $185 from a trunk belonging to a companion.

Barney's Fortune

By Constance D'Arcy Mackay

Copyright, 1906, by Constance D'Arcy Mackay

It was a fine day in the month of June, and the sun shone brightly upon the green hills of the country. The air was fresh and cool, and the birds were singing in the trees. Barney was sitting on a bench in the park, looking at a book. He was a young man of about twenty, with dark hair and a fair complexion. He was wearing a light-colored suit and a white shirt with a bow tie. He was looking at a book, and his face was set in a serious expression. He was looking at a book, and his face was set in a serious expression. He was looking at a book, and his face was set in a serious expression.

HAVING A GOOD CRY

By DONALD ALLEN

Copyright, 1906, by Robt. Douglas

Pretty Viola Craydon had come down to visit her aunt in her country home, and for a week she had been supremely happy. There were chickens and ducks and geese, there were guinea hens and doves and rabbits, there were innocent lambskins and frolicking calves, and she had tried to milk a cow, fallen off a fence and churched two pounds of butter. But for Arthur Tyson this dream of bliss might have continued another week, and pretty Viola might have climbed to the roof of the wagon shed, sold paper rags to a peddler and gone blackberrying down in the meadow as a continuance of her romantic adventures.

Arthur Tyson had not only fallen in love with her, but he was intending to ask for her hand. He hadn't published his intentions in any of the journals or told the country postmistress what was in his mind, but Miss Viola had a line on him. You can't fool a girl about such things. The man who is courting her may talk about the joys of bachelor life and pretend to be a cynic on affairs of sentiment, but she can read him like a book. When Arthur had said that he would arrive at Viola's aunt's on the 14th—running down in his auto in the forenoon and running back to the city again in the evening—there was a look in his eyes that said there would be something doing.

The 14th came, and then things began to happen. A letter arrived from Arthur to say that his grandmother wanted him to hurry to her dying bedside, a big bundle came droning along, even as Viola was reading the letter while seated on the veranda, and stung her on the bare arm; a windmill man called on business and tried to flirt with her; she was chased out of the barnyard by a calf and chased back again by a turkey gobbler; the dog got hold of her cute summer hat and chewed it up, and she fell down cellar while going after preserves and landed on top of the family cat.

Several other vexatious things occurred between the morning of the 14th and noon of the next day, and an hour after dinner Miss Viola made up her mind to have a good cry. It was a long time before she could get the tears to come, but when they came they came in a flood. She cried for an hour, and when she stopped she was so tired that she fell asleep. When she awoke she found that she was alone in the house, and she was so tired that she fell asleep again. When she awoke she found that she was alone in the house, and she was so tired that she fell asleep again.

It was some hours later, when the harvest moon was shining and the whippoorwill was singing, that she told her story, and though her aunt was sitting right beside her and holding her hand, and calling her "poor dear," the story had only been finished when Arthur Tyson leaped forward and kissed her and said that he proposed to see from that time on that she had the legal and moral right to weep in any grove she wanted to without being hustled around the country as an escaped lunatic. The proposal didn't come in the romantic form expected, but Miss Viola was a girl of sense and realized that when exigencies arise the machinery of romance may be thrown out of gear.

In the service of a certain committee of the senate, the chairman of which is a southern senator, is a certain capable young stenographer and typewriter, in addition to the duties of the committee. One day the chairman, missing the very capable stenographer, inquired of the clerk where he was.

"He is not here today, sir," responded the clerk. "His father is dead."

Some days later the chairman again asked for the missing employee, only to receive the same reply from the clerk.

"He is not here today, sir. His father is dead."

The chairman said nothing, but looked very interested. A full week thereafter the head of the committee for the third time inquired as to the whereabouts of the stenographer. In reply the clerk began the usual announcement:

"He is not here today, sir. His father is dead."

"Will you kindly advise me," interrupted the chairman, with alarming gravity, "whether that young man intends to stay away from his duties all the time his father is dead?"—Harper's Weekly.

venation of Forester

D'Arcy Mackay
by E. C. Farrell descended from her about her helplessly could see the road dusty and desolate. It was a good thing my machine is covered," he went on, "for we are going to have a bit of a storm." He snatched up his dust-colored coat and held it out for her. "I'm sorry it's so cumbersome," he said, smiling, "though at least it's a protection."

Olivia was lost in the folds of it, and the wind whipped her veil out benemer-like and she stepped into Willoughby's car. The storm had broken on them, and the rain drove blindingly in their faces. Trees, fields and road seemed blurred out. The rain was still coming down in torrents as the two machines spurred up the gravel driveway under the Forester's porte cochere, and Willoughby opened the door for Olivia as if it was an everyday occurrence, though none of his family had set foot within the Forester grounds in a lifetime.

Olivia, disheveled and breathless, stood dripping in the hall, while her father in a passion of resentment listened to the story of her afternoon's adventure. And in the house across the way young Willoughby mused with an unlighted pipe between his lips. "What would she have thought," he murmured, "if she had known that the breakdown of my bulky old motor was nothing but a ruse from start to finish? But all's fair in love and motoring."

But the barriers of the feud were down, and between Olivia and Willoughby acquaintance deepened into intimacy. They took long rides through the country, the two machines whirling along side by side. "I've never had a chauffeur," said Olivia on one of these occasions.

"But you should," Willoughby whimsically protested. "I know of some one who's longing for the place."

"Why, what?" began Olivia and then stopped. The look in Willoughby's eyes was not one of banter.

"I'm not worthy of it," he went on. "But still I dare to ask. And if you'll say 'yes' I'll do my best to steer straight and well and guard you to the end of the journey. Will you trust me, Olivia?"

"Always," she answered, and from the autumn slope of the hill down which they rode it seemed as if the whole world lay golden before them.

But their dream was destined to end with startling abruptness when Willoughby wrote to her father, for it gave the old gentleman a grim satisfaction to refuse all terms of reconciliation. He cherished the feud because it belonged to the old order of things, and for him custom was not easily uprooted.

To Olivia's many entreaties he made the same obdurate answers. But there was in her a spark of the same unquenchable fire that burned in him, and his determination flamed its embers to a blaze as she went quietly on with her preparations—preparations of which no one knew save Willoughby and Mr. MacWhirter, the village justice, who had known Olivia since childhood.

"This is romantically old fashioned enough to suit even your father," declared Willoughby as they sped through the moonlit night on their way to the 5:15 train.

Olivia's answer was a clutch on his arm. "Listen," she cried. "We're being followed! It's father—in my machine—with Murray the groom."

Willoughby's chauffeur put on full speed, and the waiting MacWhirter was caught up with ecstasies of rapidity. The car was still plunging forward at a terrific rate as he foisted out the words of the hurried ceremony. It was a race for love and the auto won—barely won; they had not reached the village station before the other machine came alongside.

For the first time in many years old Chilton Forester had been completely taken out of himself. The long stretch of road, white in the moonlight, the crisp air of night rushing past him had filled him with a tremendous exhilaration. He half forgot the lovers in the keenness of this new sensation. His blood felt like wine in his veins. The ivory tint of his face had taken on a glow. His eyes sparkled. To Olivia's startled gaze he looked strangely young. Of the torrent of denunciation that the runaway pair had expected there was none.

"You young fools," said Chilton Forester pleasantly, "you young fools!" And then, leaning toward his son-in-law, he inquired with passionate interest, "What is the make of your machine?"

Found His Anchor

(Original.)
A young man trudged with a sprightly step along a dusty road. A farmer named him and looked back. The stranger was not of the cut that was usually seen walking in those parts, such persons preferring an automobile or a carriage. Not that his clothes were especially fine; it was something in the general appearance of the young man himself.

Climbing a stone wall, he entered a wood, mounted a slight rise in the ground, then descended to a small artificial lake and crossed a rustic bridge. While leaning over a guard rail looking at some water lilies he heard a woman's voice coming from behind him:

"Strangers are not admitted to these grounds, sir."

The man turned and saw a very pretty girl shading her eyes with a red parasol from the autumn sun. Raising his hat, he replied:

"I saw no prohibition notice as I entered."

"If you had entered by the gateway, you would have seen one."

"But I didn't enter by the gate."

"For that reason I have spoken to you. Persons coming in here socially or on business don't climb the wall."

"I'm sorry to have trespassed. By your speech I judge that you own the place."

"My father rents it."

"That makes him and his family owners so far as occupying it exclusively for themselves is concerned. Don't you think it a bit selfish in you to begrudge a poor traveler the pleasure of resting in the cool shade?"

"Should we do so we would be over run. Besides, they pull things to pieces. We are especially anxious to keep it in good order just now, for our lease is about to expire, and we wish to turn it over to the owner in first class shape."

"A very exacting person, I presume?"

"Oh, no, it is we who are particular. Mr. Chichester concerns himself very little about it."

"Chichester? What Chichester?"

"Robert, I believe."

"You don't mean it? Bob Chichester? I know him well."

The girl cast a suspicious glance at the stranger.

"You think I am imposing on you. I will describe Chichester and prove to you that I really know him."

"That wouldn't avail anything, for I never saw him myself."

"You know that he has been a student at Oxford, England?"

"Yes, I know that."

"Well, we both, being Americans, knew each other. But I didn't fancy him."

The girl's eyes flashed.

"Unluckily he is not here to return the compliment."

"Oh, I can do that for him. His opinion of me is my opinion of him."

"Superior persons are usually disliked by their inferiors."

"Bob Chichester isn't my superior," he said, with remarkably good nature. "We're two of a kind—a pair of knaves."

"Knaves always consider other persons knaves. Perhaps that's the reason of your opinion of Mr. Chichester."

"And the reason of his opinion of me?"

PLANT RETARDATION.

The Method of Producing Flowers Out of Season.

Lilies of the valley and many other plants are now placed on the markets of the world's great cities months after they are out of season. This is accomplished by "plant retardation," holding back the development by means of cold and darkness until what ever time is desired. Then they are once more subjected to light and warmth, when they blossom.

The most prominent feature of a plant retardation establishment is the huge cold storage building in which the plants are stored away. Under the care of the guide the visitor passes the portals. In a moment he steps from the warmth and light of a summer's day into the cold bitterness of a winter's night, the darkness of which is but feebly relieved by the flickering lanterns. The interior of the building is divided into various chambers, and each one of these is allotted to some particular kind of plant. One chamber is full of lily of the valley roots, the next is packed with boxes containing lily bulbs, while again a compartment is crammed with small potted plants of azaleas and spruce.

Each and all of these varieties are in a dormant condition, sleeping away their time entirely unconscious of the changing seasons in the outside world. The walls of the chambers are thickly coated with a deposit of frost crystals, and millions of these flash like diamonds in response to the rays of light from the lamp. The degree of cold is usually obtained by means of a compressed air apparatus, and the freezing current is led into the different chambers through wooden channels.

In course of time these passages get choked with hoarfrost, and it becomes necessary for a man to enter them and clean the accumulation away. This is a cold job. In places the temperature is as low as 20 degrees below zero. The costume of a workman engaged in this clearing out operation is practically an arctic outfit. Every part of the body with the exception of small holes for eyes and mouth must be protected with thick wool. Otherwise serious frostbites would ensue.

Retarded plants may be kept in check for eight months or at times as long as a year, and curiously enough they do not seem to be any the worse for the treatment. Indeed, the experience seems to make them grow all the faster when they are allowed to make a start. Some varieties grow at a tremendous rate when they are brought into heat.—Chicago News.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It doesn't take much to make a fool of any one.

Being busy has kept many a man out of mischief.

When a man does another man a favor, somehow it seems to strengthen his memory.

A great many people do not talk scandal, but they furnish the material, which is just as bad.

Indulge in as little foot talk as possible. People are quick to pick up your foolish sayings and repeat them behind your back.

Investigate and you will find that jealousy sends more people to insane asylums than any other thing. It will even do up drink in making a record.

"Thank heaven, the multiplication table doesn't change." It is the only thing a mother knows that is the same as when she went to school and which she can speak of without being corrected.—Atlantic Globe.

Intermarriage and Cancer.

So little is really known of the ravages of cancer that the merest scraps of information with regard to it ought not to be neglected. At the village of Clervely, on the north Devon coast, a very large percentage of deaths is due to cancer, and the reason locally given is the habit of intermarriage.

It is brought about in a place so widely severed from the outside world. The state of affairs appears to be even worse at Buck Mills, a fishing hamlet three miles away, where intermarriage has been carried to such an extreme that one surname is almost sufficient to designate the whole of the population of the village.—London Telegraph.

An Uncertain Obituary.

A Georgian man wrote the following on an oak slab which marks a supposed grave in a meadow: "This spot is sacred to the memory of a faithful animal, a white mule, born ten years before the civil war and went through that war on a rush from Bull Run to Lee's surrender. We ain't certain that the mule died here, but when last seen the faithful critter was grazing on this identical spot and trying to kick a lightning flash back to the clouds."—Atlanta Constitution.

And Then He Ran.

"Did any man ever tell you," asked Mr. Henneke as he edged toward the door, "that you were the sweetest and most beautiful woman in the world?"

"No," replied his wife.

"Gee! Men are honesters than I thought they were."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Brown Study.

"How do you intend to have the study decorated, Mrs. Goldrocks?"

"I think I'll have it decorated in deep brown," replied Mrs. Goldrocks. "My husband always likes to sit in a deep brown study."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A LAND OF BLIZZARDS

THE FIERCE GALES THAT SWEEP AND WRECK SEISTAN.

These Terrible Windstorms Always Blow, as They Have Done For Ages, From the Same Direction—A Pandemonium of Noise, Sand and Dust.

Every one who has visited Seistan or written about Seistan has mentioned its celebrated wind, called the bad-i-sad-o-bist-roz, or wind of 120 days, which blows in the summer. Few of these have had the misfortune to experience it, but as we went through two seasons of this wind we are able to say something about it. It more than justifies its reputation. It sets in at the end of May or the middle of June and blows with appalling violence and with little or no cessation till about the end of September. It always blows from one direction, a little west of north, and reaches a velocity of more than seventy miles an hour. It creates a pandemonium of noise, sand and dust and for a time gets on one's nerves, but it is in reality a blessing in disguise, for it blows away the insects which from April to June make life in Seistan a perfect purgatory, mitigates the awful summer heat and clears the country of typhus, smallpox and other diseases rife in the country in May and June. One would think this 120 day wind enough, but violent winds prevail all through the winter from December to April, and blizzards are of constant occurrence. These winds always come from the same direction. The winter blizzards are terrible, and the wind attains a terrific velocity. In a blizzard at the end of March the anemometers registered a maximum of 120 miles an hour. The average velocity for a whole sixteen hours was more than eighty-eight miles an hour.

The extraordinary frequency and violence of the Seistan wind and the regularity with which it blows from the same quarter are very remarkable. That it has blown from the same quarter in past ages is proved by the fact that all the ruins of Seistan are built at the same angle, with their front and back walls at a right angle to the wind and their side walls at the same angle as the wind. No wind can blow with such violence and frequency without leaving its mark on the country. Its effects are everywhere visible in Seistan. Everything looks wind swept and wind stricken. Over the greater part of the country not a single tree exists.

The present villages and habitations are all built with their backs presenting lines of dead walls on the windward side. The old ruins are oriented at exactly the same angle on account of the wind. The effect of wind is everywhere visible on these ruins. Their bases are undercut by wind as though by water action. The thickness of the walls, the excellent quality of the burned bricks made and used by the ancient inhabitants for the lower courses of their buildings and the extreme hardness and durability of the Seistan soil when made into the sun dried bricks of which the upper portions of the ruins are composed, have withstood the destructive effect of the wind in a wonderful manner, but in the older ruins we often find that the walls facing the wind have entirely disappeared, and only the side walls remain, while in still older ruins one or two solitary plinths remain to mark what were once large, massive and extensive buildings.

The wind has buried large tracts of the country under sand. Many of the old ruined towns are wholly or partly buried in sand, and this burying process goes on all the year and every year and is covering up not only valuable lands, but inhabited villages. In Seistan, as elsewhere, the invading army of sand is preceded by lines of skurishers in the form of traveling "bunkhans," horseshoe shaped sand hills, which steadily advance until they meet some obstacle which retards them until the reserves come up to their support and bury all before them under hills of sand.

On our arrival in Seistan we found Kilaoun, a big and flourishing village, built on the south side of a high ridge for protection from the wind. Before we left the sand had attacked that ridge, surrounded it and buried the village, forcing the inhabitants to build a new village elsewhere. An example of still greater rapidity was afforded at the village of Kilaoun. Up to June, 1904, this village had a large, deep pond on its northern side. By September—that is, less than three months—this deep pond was converted into a sand hill some ten feet high.

The wind, however, did not confine its energy to burying only. While it covers some tracts deep in sand, it also sweeps other tracts clear of sand, rendering valuable land available for cultivation and exposing long buried ruins once more to view. These are, however, only the milder effects of wind action. The Seistan wind in its more destructive moods has in places removed not only sand from place to place, but has scoured away the whole face of the country. Everywhere we find the sides and banks of the canals which irrigated the lands on which the dwellers of the old ruins depended for standing like walls high above the present surface of the surrounding land. These banks, having been hardened by water, have withstood the action of the wind better than the surface of the land, which has all been blown away to a depth of several feet. This depth in places is very considerable and we find the outlines exposed of still older canals which existed at some yet earlier age and which must have been buried deep in the ground when the canals above them, old as they are, were in use.—Geographical Journal.

OHIO HISTORY.

The first settlers in Ohio—the New Englanders who founded Marietta in 1788—were men of much intelligence. Their native shrewdness was unquestioned. Yet they were far from choosing the most fertile and inviting part of Ohio for their venture in the wilderness. The money which they paid for huts and rather narrow bottom lands in the valleys of the Muskingum and the Hocking would have bought much more productive and inviting tracts watered by the Miami.

It has often been a cause of wonder to students of Ohio history that these pioneers should have used poor judgment in so important a matter. They were certainly ignorant of the rich mineral deposits of the region upon the development of which they staked their fortunes.

There is reason to believe that the Indians had much to do with the choice of the Muskingum and Hocking valleys, and the Ohio river bottoms near the mouth of the Muskingum. The valley of the Miami was a noted Indian pathway for war parties. It was much farther from Pittsburgh and the other settlements about the headwaters of the Ohio. The New Englanders had ventured far when they chose the mouth of the Muskingum for their desire to go as much farther as the Miami.

Their heirs, of this generation, have no reason to complain of the selection made. Iron, coal, salt and petroleum have made the hills of Southeastern Ohio extremely valuable and productive. Marietta itself is a flourishing city which has renewed its youthful promise, in its comparative old age.

About the time of the Civil War freight was carried from Cleveland to the Ohio river, by the way of the Ohio canal and the Muskingum river, which is never transported now in that way through Ohio. Iron ore from the Lake Superior region was carried by water to Ohio river furnaces, and it was not uncommon to ship Lake Erie ice down the canal and the Muskingum.

Another curious phase of Muskingum river traffic at that time was the transportation of troops during the war. Some of the boats used to convey soldiers to the Ohio river, below the mouth of the Muskingum, passed into the service of the government and were sent up the Tennessee and the Cumberland. Boats built in Ohio for Ohio river trade helped much, in that way, to facilitate the operations of the Union army.

One Muskingum river ferry steamer, the Jesse Edington, was hastily converted into a gunboat, at the time of Biliousness and Constipation.

For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. The tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally.—Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala. These tablets are for sale by all druggists.

LAID TO REST

In Woodlawn Cemetery
Amid Flowers,

Were the Remains of Judge
Wm. H. Cunningham.
the Late Jurist.

THE LAST SAD RITES

Held Over the Remains of Two Prominent Citizens Today.

Body of the Late Cornelius Parmenter Consigned to Rest.

With the county capitol building closed, its stars and stripes at half mast and the entire community in sadness, the funeral of the late eminent jurist and citizen, Judge William H. Cunningham was held this afternoon from the Cunningham home at the corner of Elm and Elizabeth streets. The services, in keeping with the life of the deceased, were simple and unostentatious but a more impressive funeral and a more beautiful tribute of loyalty and honor to a departed citizen was never paid than that which was silently and sincerely paid at the old landmark birth and funeral place of the dead jurist this afternoon.

The funeral sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Mills and a fitting tribute and eloquent sermon was heard by those of the friends who were able to find room in the spacious home at the funeral hour. Equally eloquent and beautiful was the eulogy which was delivered at the bier of the deceased by Attorney James W. Halfhill, on behalf of the Allen County Bar Association.

The music which was furnished at the funeral was also beautiful and fitting. It was furnished by a mixed quartette under the direction of Mr. C. A. Richmond and the singers were Mrs. Clem S. Baxter, Mrs. R. O. Woods and Messrs. Geo. Metheny and Charles Crockett. The floral offerings, also, were very profuse and beautiful, among the special pieces being those sent to the bereaved home by the Bar Association and by the various secret orders to which the deceased belonged. Lima lodge of Elks attended in a body and the members, together with the members of other lodges to which the deceased belonged, passed through the house in single file and viewed the remains but the home, although unusually spacious and roomy, was entirely inadequate to accommodate one-fourth of the number of friends in attendance. Many attorneys, jurists and lodge men and friends from out of the city were among those present at the last sad rites. The active pall bearers, as announced yesterday, were: Messrs. Theo. D. Robb, Elmer Mitchell, Wm. Klinger, John

A. Chapin, Walter M. Scott and Andrew S. Graham. The honorary pall bearers were members of the judicial and of the common pleas and circuit court districts.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies at the home, the funeral cortege proceeded to Woodlawn cemetery, where the body of the deceased was consigned to a final resting place.

IN WOODLAWN

Remains of Cornelius Parmenter Were Laid to Rest This Morning.

The funeral of the late Cornelius Parmenter, the veteran editor and pioneer citizen whose death occurred Saturday morning, as a result of the shock and injuries he sustained in being struck by a bicycle rider at High and Elizabeth streets a week previous, was held from the late home of the deceased, at 778 west High street, at 10 o'clock this morning. The funeral obsequies were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Campbell, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, and by Rev. F. P. Bossart, of St. Paul's Lutheran church. The services were beautiful and impressive, and were very largely attended, the older citizenship of the city and community being especially well represented. The floral offerings were very profuse and beautiful. After the services at the residence, the remains were conveyed to Woodlawn cemetery, where they were consigned to a final resting place in the family lot.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Theo. D. Robb, D. J. Cable, O. B. Selfridge, John Thomas, W. A. Campbell, and R. M. Hughes.

Lima friends of Dr. J. E. Bender, well known veterinary surgeon, and a former partner of Dr. J. C. Dr. Bender has a host of friends in this city who will rejoice that the change will bring him in closer proximity to Lima.

Mayor's court, like the court of common pleas was a quiet place today, the chief executive of the city being absent this morning, attending the funeral of the late Cornelius Parmenter and absent this afternoon, attending the funeral of Hon. William H. Cunningham.

Beautiful Floral Tribute by Officials at the County Capitol.

The semi-annual tax payment of the saloonists under the new $1,000 Aiken law expired Sunday night, and saloonists have until December 20th to make their next payment of $500 for their yearly license.

However the December payment is not so serious a one as that of May, since it involves no loss of $200 for a short time limit. In the May payment when a license is taken out, if the saloonist should quit the next day he is in for a loss of $200. At this settlement he has already run past the $200 limit and it is only a matter of $2.75 per day for every twenty-four hours which elapses from the date of expiration on Sunday. To date but one Lima saloonist has annulled his license, and it is understood is a sale of his place of business. The saloonist in question is Frank Merkle, who has disposed of his business to others. One saloon on the Allen county side of Delphos has surrendered its license, it being that of Mary Stippich who will conduct only a restaurant in the future.

BUILDING IN MOURNING

Crepe at Either Door and all Offices
Are Closed.

All of the offices at the county capitol closed at 11:30 o'clock today. Crepe adorns either of the main entrance doors and the flag is at half mast. All the county officials met at one o'clock and went in a body to attend the memorial of the deceased, Judge Cunningham. A beautiful floral tribute was sent by the officials designed of ferns, roses and carnations, in the design of an open book.

THE USUAL HOLIDAY

With Friday For Good Measure Granted by Educators.

HIGH DAILY AVERAGE

Is a Credit to the School Population of the City.

There was but a brief session of the Board of Education last night with only a bare quorum present. The report of the superintendent was highly gratifying to the Board, and shows that the school youth of the city is a great credit, a daily average attendance of 93.5 per cent being shown for the gross number of enrollment aggregating 4,224 pupils, while tardiness has been reduced. In many of the buildings especially in the ward buildings located on the outskirts of the city where pupils are more prompt than in central sections.

Contractors of the west ward building made a favorable report, work now progressing on that structure at a lively pace and everything being ready for the laying of the second floor. A few more weeks will see all the brick work finished.

The power of organization was illustrated in the appeal of the East End Improvement Association for proper sidewalks to the Shawnee building, and the board ordered one constructed pending the grading of that thoroughfare.

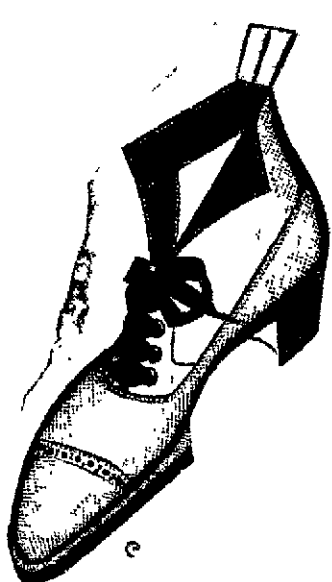

The shoe fund collection was authorized for tomorrow (Wednesday) and it is to be hoped that it will be even larger than last year, when nearly $310 was raised. Parents are requested to be liberal in the sums to pupils for this worthy cause, there being a heavy demand from the indigent this year.

The board adjourned at nine o'clock, after the report of the finance committee, allowing the usual grist of regular monthly bills.
